Introduction

The tourism industry is one of the corporate sector that is extensively beneficial for the economy as well as for the other industries and the country also (Prayag & Hosany, 2014). The unlimited benefits of high tourism rates are being discussed and mentioned in number of researches and papers. The tourism in Abu Dhabi and other Middle Eastern Countries has been flourished with the rapid development in the region since few decades (Martens & Reiser, 2017). Previously the region is only a dry desert that is not at all good for trade or tourism but with the passage of time the perception about the region have altered and among other countries and emirates in Middle East Abu Dhabi has grown to become one of the most preferable tourism destination among the tourists all around the world (Gilboa et al, 2015). This paper is focused on the identification of the perception that the tourists have for the Abu Dhabi as a tourism destination (Kotsi, Pike, & Tossan, 2017).

Background Information

It is provided that the world is advancing rapidly and so the industries in different regions of the world are growing and developing towards a successful position. In this regard the countries in Middle East also have shown rapid development and this is mainly based on the oil and gas industry of the region (Kotsi, Pike, & Tossan, 2017). But after the economies of these Middle Eastern countries get affected negatively due to drastic fall in the prices of the oil and petroleum products the governments started to focus on developing other industries as well (Avraham, 2015). In this regard one of the most important industry of Abu Dhabi is Travel and Tourism and this has become evident when the perception of the world has changed which is predicted by the increase in the number of people visiting as tourist to different places and destinations in the Abu Dhabi (Martens & Reiser, 2017). Multiple studies provided analysis of the change and developmental history of the travel and tourism industry in detail (Prayag & Hosany, 2014). Whereas there are different researches which also contribute in the literature by discussing that why travel and tourism is important for any country and how the travel and tourism is benefiting the Abu Dhabi and other gulf countries in the Middle East (Avraham, 2015).

Purpose and Aim

The purpose of this research is that it will provide the analysis that how the tourists in the world perceive about the Abu Dhabi and how favorable tourist destination is Abu Dhabi for them. In this regard the core aim of this paper is to identify the imaginative perception of the Abu Dhabi Tourism Destination among tourists. There are multiple researches done on the travel and tourism in the region which are focusing on different aspects and factors. Some of them providing the detailed history of the tourism and travel industry of Abu Dhabi and providing the analysis of the current condition of the industry which is then contrasted to the previous situation (Prayag & Hosany, 2014). Moreover discussions also provided that previously the region is not developed and majority consider it as a dry and boring place to go. But now with the passage of time when the region is developed and the location is invented and explored so the government and the respective authorities have invested in these destinations (Martens & Reiser, 2017). Many other destinations and man-made locations are also developed in the region which are also reason of attraction of the tourists for Abu Dhabi (Kotsi, Pike, & Tossan, 2017). It is thus analyzed that the perception of the world about the Abu Dhabi as a tourism destination has been changed and now many people prefer to visit Abu Dhabi not only for their commercial needs but for entertainment and relaxation (Avraham, 2015). But what is the new perception is not yet researched and this is the reason that this research is required to be conducted. This paper is thus contributing in the literature for providing detailed analysis of the current perception of the tourists about the Abu Dhabi as a tourism destination.

Methodology

This is a quantitative research which is focusing on the collection of primary data for the analysis of the proposed hypothesis. The research is based on the collection of data using survey method in which questionnaire are distributed among the tourists in three different locations of Abu Dhabi. The questionnaire included some close and open ended questions and the sample size of the paper is 40. For the data analysis the statistical calculations including calculating mean is used and in discussion bar graphs and pie charts are used for representing the values of the data collected.

Results with Implications

The first chart is representing the imaginative association in which four different pictures are asked to be reviewed by the respondent and their imagination about their next planned vacation is being asked. Majority of respondents said that they are planning to visit a place with sand and sun.

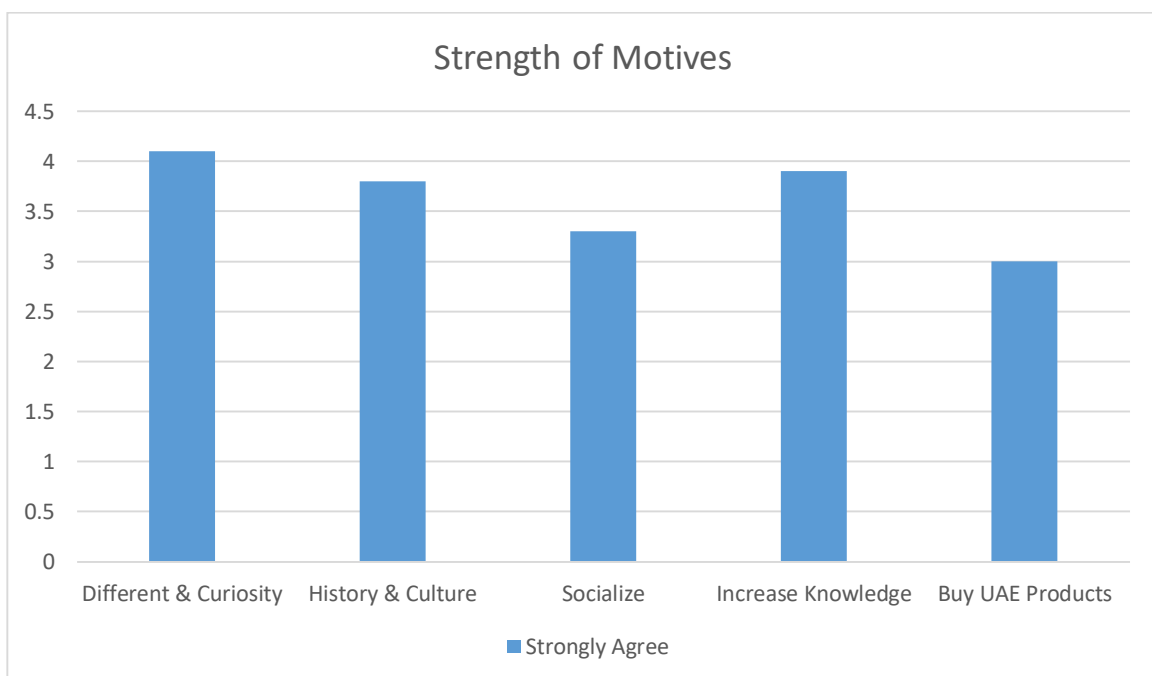

The second chart is representing the realistic association in which four different realistic pictures of different locations of Abu Dhabi are shared with respondents and asked to tick the one which exactly describe their planned destination. Contrary to the first graph 50% respondents marked Emirati Authenticity as their best opinion for tourism destination.

The third chart is representing the reason to travel to Abu Dhabi in 7 different options are given as the reason to travel to Abu Dhabi and almost 28% people stated that the culture and art of the region is the most attractive reason to choose Abu Dhabi for tourism.

The fourth chart is representing the strengths of motives in which 5 different motives for coming Abu Dhabi are provided and asked to rate them from strongly agreed to strongly disagreed. Then the mean of the responses is calculated and so the motive of seeing something different and fulfill the curiosity is the highest rated option with 4.1 mean.

The fifth chart is representing the perceived destination image in which 7 options are provided and the perception that tourist have about the Abu Dhabi as a tourism destination is being asked.

The responses provided that sun, sand and sea are the main perception that they have about the region.

The sixth chart is representing the place attachment which is providing the analysis of the experience that the tourists have about the location while visiting Abu Dhabi. In its response majority of the tourists state that they feel safe and welcoming when they come to visit Abu Dhabi.

Conclusion

It can be concluded on the basis of the research that the image perception of Abu Dhabi as tourism destination is positive and people priorities it for their vacations and entertainment due to the natural sceneries including the sand, sun and sea view. In addition to this the people have great experience visiting the Abu Dhabi and so they are willing to return here again in future. The tourists found multiple interesting and attractive tourism destinations in the Abu Dhabi and they love to visit them as this help them relax and get entertained by multiple facilities available at these locations for the enjoyment purpose (Sharifpour, Walters & Ritchie, 2014).
